

How to Clean Fire Glass Crystals

1. Remove the fire glass from your fire pit or fireplace. Be careful of any small pieces of broken glass; this is a great time to sweep those into the trash.
2. Wear protective gloves when handling fire pit glass. Especially important when touching Original or Crushed fire glass, gloves will ensure you avoid contact with any sharp edges.
3. Put the fire glass into a strainer in small batches.

4. Wash the fire glass with simple dish soap, or make your own solution of distilled water and vinegar. You can do this in your sink or outside with a hose.

5. Rinse fire glass thoroughly with water.

6. Allow fire glass to dry.

That's it! It's easy to keep your fire glass clean. Many of our customers rotate their fire glass seasonally, changing colors throughout the year. If that's you, the transition between different types or colors of fire glass is the perfect opportunity to clean your glass. Wash the fire glass, let it dry, and then bag it up until the next time you plan to use it! It'll be shining like new when the seasons change again.

Fire Glass Cleaning in Propane Fire Pits and Fireplaces

Propane burns darker than natural gas, which can cause some discoloration to your glass. This means you may need to clean your fire glass more often if using propane.
